MARGIE JENKINS

Margie Little Jenkins, MSW, LPC, LMFT, is a published author of You Only Die Once: Preparing for the End of Life with Grace and Gusto, thirty-year social worker, public speaker, lecturer and newspaper columnist. She is nationally recognized for her work with end-of-life planning issues and is noted for her sensitivity, humor and clinical practicality.

She has interviewed frequently on TV and radio around the country, and has traveled extensively, speaking to professional and public groups on the topic of her book. As a volunteer therapist for Cancer Counseling, Inc. for over twenty years, Margie works with cancer patients and their families, guiding them through life's final chapter. Her philosophy is to celebrate each day, to prepare for life's final chapter before you need to, and then to live with grace and gusto.

Margie's discussions cover a myriad of issues, including the practicalities of knowing what to do at the time of death and who to inform; Identifying and organizing all vital paperwork; creating lasting memories of your or your loved ones' lives; leaning new ways of showing love and caring at a time when it is most needed; and how to understand grief phases in order to move on.
